

Private Messages

Warlords,

I've updated the Private Messages feature to allow a user to select an option to have them notified by email when they have a new private message.

To enable this feature, click on the Private Messages link from the main Forum screen. There you will see a new settings link. Click that and enable the sending of email notifications.

There was another option to embed the private message in the notification email. I didn't turn that on. Would anyone like that enabled as well?

I can't see any harm in doing that and it might be useful to be able to read the message in your email.
